COLLYER BRISTOW GALLERY LAUNCHES FIRST ART EXHIBITION FOR 2009

London, Wednesday 4 February 2009

The Collyer Bristow Gallery opens its 2009 programme with Borderland, an exhibition of works that epitomise the idea of “borderland” - the mid space between the natural and the man-made, as well as the divergences between the past and the present. Borderland brings together sixteen contemporary artists whose practice has taken on landscape and returned it in painterly, drawn, sculptural or photographic form. All artists have different approaches to the subject matter but revere landscape for its ability to change, adapt and regenerate. Works to specifically look out for at the exhibition are those by Rona Lee, Lee Maelzer, and Minou Norouzi, who are gaining particular momentum in the art world.

Jackie Reiss, Partnership Director, commented, “We are really excited about the first show of 2009, and there are some stunning pieces on display – from grand landscape oil paintings, to pencil sketches and dynamic sculptural and slide works. We hope our clients and visitors to the gallery enjoy the exhibition.”
